

Lone Eagle Entertainment announces production of You Gotta Eat Here!
for Food Network Canada.

FOR IMMEDIATE RELEASE

(TORONTO – November 8, 2010) Lone Eagle Entertainment Ltd. is proud to announce the production of the new television series You Gotta Eat Here! which is slated to air on Food Network Canada in fall 2011.

You Gotta Eat Here! is deliciously funny. This 13 episode, half hour television series sends our charming, funny and food-obsessed host, comedian John Catucci, on a quest for Canada's most delicious, mouthwatering, over-the-top comfort food. He's visiting great joints, greasy spoons, and legendary restaurants to taste the food that made them famous and to meet the colourful characters that make them institutions. John dives into the kitchens to find out what makes these signature recipes so damn good. Health food? Not on this show, baby. Bring on the cheese, bacon, and barbecue!

"We know everyone has a 'spot' they rave about. Every episode will be an up close and personal visit with three great, off the beaten path spots," said Michael Geddes, Executive Producer, Lone Eagle Entertainment. "We know that You Gotta Eat Here! will be a mouth watering journey that everyone is going to talk about."

John Catucci, is a Canadian sketch comedian, singer and actor. He is a member of The Minnesota Wrecking Crew and the musical comedy duo The DooWops. Some of John's film and television credits include The Tuxedo, starring Jackie Chan, Toronto 1's The Toronto Show, CBC's To Die Four and The Sean Cullen Show, the feature film First Time Caller, The Comedy Network's Liocracy, and ABC's Movie of the Week Kiss My Act. John has also guest starred a number of times on Global TV's Train 48, and is a series regular on the CBC children's show The Doodlebops, presently in its third season, as well as a lead in the Comedy Network original series Punched Up.
